The Wood Badge Beads of Dinizulu

Early in the history of the Scout Movement, the founder, Robert Baden-Powell, ran the first residential adult leader training course for Scouters. At the completion of the course, the participants asked him if he could give them some token to indicate that they had been trained. He had not given this any thought, but on receiving the request he improvised by taking two little beads from a string of such beads he had; he threaded them on a bootlace, and hung them around the neck of each Scouter.

Ever since, each Scouter who has successfully completed the advanced training course receives two similar beads on a leather thong. Known as the Wood Badge beads, they are proudly worn by Scouters to indicate that they are continuing in a tradition handed down from Baden-Powell.

The conferring of wooden beads as a sign of recognition is an old Zulu tradition. We read of them first in the story of Charles Rawden Maclean, also known as John Ross, shipwrecked off the Zululand coast in 1825. He was one of the first white persons to meet the great Zulu king, Shaka. In his description of the Festival of the First Fruits, he wrote, "They now commenced ornamenting and decorating their persons with beads and brass ornaments. The most curious part of these decorations consisted of several rows of small pieces of wood... strung together and made into necklaces and bracelets. ... On enquiry we found that the Zulu warriors set great value on these apparently useless trifles and that they were orders of merit conferred by Shaka. Each row was the distinguishing mark of some great heroic deed, and the wearer had received them from Shaka's own hand. Later, when Maclean met the royal party, he observed that Dingane, Shaka's half-brother, was "dressed in the same manner as the king, but without so large a display of beads."

Robert Baden-Powell came across these beads 63 years later in 1888, when the British had defeated the Zulu nation at war and annexed Zululand as a part of the British colonies. Dinizulu, the grand-nephew of Shaka, refused to accept the annexation and led the uSuthu tribe of the Zulus in rebellion.

B-P later wrote about the campaign to subdue and capture Dinizulu, "Eventually Dinizulu took refuge in his stronghold. I had been sent forward on a Scouting expedition into his stronghold. He nipped out as we got in. In his haste he left his necklace behind - a very long chain of little wooden beads. These beads now form the Wood Badge which Scouters win who go through the Training Course at Gilwell."

There can be no doubt that the beads of Dinizulu were identical to those beads that Maclean saw Shaka wearing. It is quite extraordinary that Baden- Powell should have chosen those beads as an award, to be "conferred by his own hand," without knowing that Shaka had used them in the same way.

Today, thousands of Zulu boys are Scouts. In 1987, Chief Minister Mangosuthu Buthelezi of KwaZulu was the guest of honor at a huge Scout rally. Chief Buthelezi's mother-in-law, Princess Mahoho, was a daughter of Dinizulu. At the rally, the Chief Scout of South Africa, Garnet de la Hunt, took from around his neck a thong on which four Wood Badge beads were hung, and handed it to Chief Buthelezi, in a symbolic act of returning the beads to their rightful heir.

Healing Beaver, Stefan Walker replies: "My empathy for others, before self helps me see the world through a boys perspective."

Feature- Beaver of the Day: use attached write up for Jeff Chilcoat. Silly Beaver patrol member, Monica Perez suggests we take a bite out the service totem shovel. Patrol members had to hit her with the shovel to stop her from causing irreparable dental damage. Monica will now carve teeth marks into the shovel instead!!!

EAGLE PATROL

Arrival of Den 3 results in the Birth of Eagles at Camp Karankawa

By Eagle Patrol Scribe

Morning came bright and early for six cub scouts from Den #3 as they converged on Camp Karankawa to what would be one of two exciting weekends.

These bright Cubs came with a wealth of experience. Cub Carter has been active in Scouting for the past 19 years. Cub Jimmy and Cub Roger both have 6 years of experience in their respective packs and troops, though Cub Jimmy does admit to looking up his fellow Cub Scout Roger as he is an Eagle Scout.

Along for the adventure is Cub Ninfa with 15 years of wilderness survival in Scouting as she is married to an Eagle Camp Ranger and also mother to an Eagle Cub Veronica finally found her way to the location and arrived just in time to join the fun – those farm roads can get so confusing. Rounding out the group is Cub Morgan and looking over his shoulder is Papa Ron – Remember, he loves you blue! Our Cubs have now crossed over that bridge and transitioned into Eagles!!! Group pictures were done with no problems, even though Jimmy wanted to show off his new skills and fly across the lake – the rest of the Patrol held him back. No incidents have yet been reported for these new Eagles, but remember, the adventure has just begun! Good news is there is a rumor about the Eagles, one of them hold the key to the Eagle's nest and that patrol has unlimited access to ice cream and candy bars (thank you Ninfa). Be nice to those Eagle, they know people ;)
